

B-02

Lighting

During the Edo period, the production of oil made from rapeseed and perilla increased, and lanterns were used as lights in rural areas. The lighting allowed people to work during the night. At Yamba, perilla used as raw material for oil were cultivated within. The oil squeezed from seeds with an oil squeezing machine were mainly used for domestic use, but it seems that some were sold elsewhere.