Crushed Tea Kettle

The power of the Tenmei mudflow that flowed down the Agatsuma River was tremendous, and different types of tea kettles that were discovered were so crushed that the original shapes are unknown. On the other hand, there were some incense sticks, smoke pipes, Uchiwa fans, etc. that remained in their shapes even though they were fragile. The mudflow struck the village several times, making complex movements. What was buried in the first mudflow was covered by the subsequent mudflow, so it stayed there without being washed away.
