Bell of the Jorin Temple

The bell of Jorin Temple in Naganohara Town was washed away by the Kambara earthen avalanche and disappeared, but after a flood on August 10, 1910, an angler in the Kawarahata field found it 15 km downstream. The dragon head that held the bell was discovered in 1983 at the Agatsuma River in Tsumagoi Village, about 2 km downstream from the current Jorin Temple, and reunited miraculously 200 years after the great eruption of Tenmei. The dragon head is exhibited at the Tsumagoi Village Folk Museum.
