

F-02

Memory of the Disaster

The Tenmei mudflow was an unprecedented event for the people of the time. Documents and drawings left by many people and memorial monuments built in various places convey the disaster to this day. In addition, the excavation survey has revealed the situation before and after the disaster. Activities dedicated to handing down the memory of the disaster along with holding memorial services and mourning the spirits of those who died have been passed on to many people.